1. Claim 36 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 36, the phrase "in the plane defined by the cutting edge" is indefinite. The cutting edge is one-dimensional and inherently does not define any plane, thus it is not clear what would or would not infringe on this claim.

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 34-36, 41 and 42 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kawara et al.'249, who shows a unitary razor body with all of the limitations as seen in figure 9. The flywheel vibration device (150-152) is in proximity to the blade mount (132). The blade is vibrated along its cutting edge (lines 43-45, column 2).

4. Applicant's arguments have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that claim 36 is not indefinite. However, the fact remains that a one-dimensional object does not define a plane.

Applicant argues that Kawara's razor body is not "unitary". The term "unitary" means "of or pertaining to a unit" (Webster's II university dictionary). The Kawara's razor body is certainly a unit. Even though it is comprised of various parts, these parts are rigidly connected together, thus the body is considered to be "unitary". Of interest is In re Larson, 144 USPQ 347, which ruled that the prior art could be considered "integral" even though it was made of several parts.

Even if Applicant did find a way to claim that the body was made from just one piece, it still would have been obvious to modify Kawara by making it out of one piece.

5. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
